LECTURERS/ADMINISTRATORS: A MUST NOT DO
IN GOU

- When we start attaching prices to grade or handling students' files
- When we encourage students to sort for grades by all means.
- Selling handouts to students by force
- When we deliberately mark them down in grade scoring.
- When we only come to give course outline and for the rest of the semester be like:
- When it's been one hour and we haven't been unreasonable yet.

- Whenever we say “I’m begging you now so you will not beg me later.”
- When we are still teaching students from the same notes they wrote 20 years ago.
- When we start boasting about the failure rate of their course.
- When we say you can’t graduate with a first class because they didn’t.
- When we say “A is for God, B is for me, C and below is for you.”

- When we bribe them financially, or buy expensive gifts not to report us to the higher authorities,
- When we use them to create fear, intimidation, humiliation, and discrimination,
- Harass them:
  - sexually,
  - verbally,
  - mentally,

Summary & Conclusions

Being ethical and professional does not mean being perfect. We teachers and administrators are human beings. If a teacher has a slip with language or a response, students will understand if they admit the mistake. Although we should strive to be ethical and professional we also need to show that we are not robots. Teachers and administrators should try and maintain exclusively professional behavior but they may also show their most human and personal side. University lecturers and administrators should dress appropriately and professional for respect, credibility, acceptance and authority. Lecturers have a responsibility to encourage learning, and learning begins by gaining and keeping the respect of students. Your respect begins with your appearance.

MY FINAL THOUGHT

We lecturers/administrators must TEACH and SHOW our students:

- That we can be responsible for one another.
- That the university is a place to gain knowledge and acquire skills.
- That the university is a place to give and receive love.
- That the university is a place to become successful.

Please lecturers/teachers/administrators, do the very best version of yourselves and display high ethical and professionalism in our work in accordance with GOU regulations. Follow the dress code of the university.

DON'T QUIT

Thank you
